STOW FOUNDATION PAVEMENT
SAN FRANCISCO, January 20, 1869.
Hon. Frank McCoppin, Mayor of San Francisco—Dear Sir: You have now been in office with the City Government as Supervisor and Mayor for the last nine years, during which time a large amount of street pavement has been laid in front of property holders, and I would respectfully call your attention to the several styles of street paving now in use in this city. By answering you will much oblige
Your Ob'dient servant,
H. F. WILLIAMS
President Stow Foundation Pavement Co.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 20th 1869.
Henry F. Williams, Esq., President of the S. F. P. Co.—Dear Sir: Your communication of yesterday, requesting me to give in writing my opinion relative to the several kinds of street pavement now in use in this city, is before me, and in reply I would say, that at the time I became a municipal officer of this city in 1856, and for many years thereafter cobble-stone was the only kind of pavement used by the city in its corporate, and by individuals in their individual capacity. About five years ago the Nicolson pavement was introduced here by Mr. J. J. Robbins, assignee of the owner of the patent, and was received with much favor by our citizens. Very many portions of our streets are now paved with the Nicolson Pavement, so-called—still later—that is to say, about two years ago, the "Stow Foundation Pavement" was introduced here by the inventor, and many of our public streets have since been paved with that pavement.
A sufficient length of time has, I think, elapsed, to enable any person who has given the subject any attention, to form an intelligent opinion as to the merits of the respective wooden pavements—of course, I leave the cobble-stones out of view entirely—and I have come to the conclusion, that, in many respects, such as adaptability to our wants and in durability, the Stow is the superior pavement. But, were the two pavements equal in every other respect, the facility with which the Stow can be taken up and relaid, whenever it becomes necessary to displace it for the purpose of laying down gas and water pipes, should, in my judgment, entitle it to preference and public favor.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
FRANK McCOPPIN,
Mayor of the City of San Francisco.

We, the undersigned, have carefully read the above letter from his Honor, Frank McCoppin, to H. F. Williams, Esq., upon the subject of street paving, and we fully indorse every word it contains.

PETROLEUM V. NASBY, P. M.,
Wich is Postmaster in and State of Kentucky.
Jan. 20, 1869.

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day purchased a controlling interest in the Petroleum V. Nasby Paper, and have assumed the position of Editor and Publisher. I have long entertained the belief that I was peculiarly fitted for the position, and have only been deterred from seeking it by the fear that I might be accused of selfish motives. But I would respectfully call your attention to the fact that I am now in receipt of a salary of $1,000 per annum, and that, in assuming the position of Editor, I shall be compelled to forego several sources of considerable profit, which will more than counterbalance the increase of salary. Light Houses in Mid Ocean.—One of the boats which left the sinking steamer Hibernia has reached the west of Ireland after a voyage of nearly 700 miles. Of the twenty eight persons who embarked in her only three survived to reach the land. The sufferings of these unfortunate people make one wish that places of refuge could be established in mid ocean for the benefit of shipwrecked men, and ought to raise the question whether the establishment of such places would be absolutely impracticable. Many years ago the brother of Prof. S. F. B. Morse proposed a plan for having an electric telegraph, the chief feature of which consisted in the establishment of stations in the Atlantic, at intervals of twenty or thirty miles apart. The author of this plan contended that in going to Europe and be anchored below the surface of the ocean, out of the reach of currents or surface storms, and used as foundations on which light houses could be built. Visionary as the plan seemed at the time when it was promulgated, we are now accustomed to scientific miracles to regard it without some such extension. Now that steam navigation has become the one suggested could be made and anchored. Where, then, would be the impossibility of building a light-house on the principle of one of the ordinary kind, but so constructed as to be capable of resisting the action of the winds and waves. Such a structure would not be subject to greater violence than is the Eddystone Light House, and it might, at the points where the business would permit, greatly increase the number of receivers. As a protest to those living on the coast, A letter in the Times points out the course of no consequence that could the proposed oceanic light houses be constructed their benefit to mariners would be incalculable.

An English newspaper found a frame guilty of theft, but recommended him to mercy. The court asked the grounds of recommendation, and the foreman, after a long consultation with his associates, replied "because he one need him to commit the crime!"

Glass Making.

The art of glass making is of very high antiquity. The oldest known specimen of transparent glass is a bottle about 5½ inches high, discovered by Mr. Layard in the ruins of the N. W. palace at Nineveh, and now in the British Museum. It was blown in one solid piece and then hollowed out by a machine. It has engraved upon it the name and title of Sargon, accompanied with the figure of a lion. Its date, therefore, is the latter part of the seventh century B. C. The art, however, has been practiced in Egypt many centuries before this. There was discovered at Thebes a glass bead bearing the name of a king who lived about 1450 B. C. The monuments carry us back even further than this. On the paintings at Beni Hassen, which belongs to the reign of Osirtasen I, who reigned B. C. 2,000, we have figures of glass work, and on the monuments of the 10th dynasty, some two centuries earlier still, are drawings of bottles of transparent glass containing a red wine. The skill shown by the ancient Egyptian glass blowers is almost incredible. Except perhaps in point of brilliancy—and the evidence here must necessarily be wanting in consequence of the chemical changes which time causes in the substance of the glass—they seem to have equalled, and, in some instances, surpassed any production of modern times. Their art of introducing different colors in the same vase has, I believe, as yet found no imitators. One very curious specimen in their skill has been preserved. It is not quite an inch in length by one-third in breadth, and one sixth in thickness, and contains a figure of a bird resembling a duck in very bright and varied colors. "The most delicate pencil of a miniature painter could not have traced with greater sharpness the circle of the plumage of the neck and wings." The most wonderful thing, however, is that the picture goes all through the glass, so that both sides show the same figure. The way in which it must have been made was by arranging threads of colored and uncolored glass in such a manner as to produce the required figure at each end of the mass. The threads were then united by heat, each thread being adjusted separately. The bar of glass

The Jewelled Watch.

Among the many officers who, at the close of the Peninsular war, retired on half-pay was Capt Dutton, of the —th regiment He had lately married the pretty, portionless daughter of a deceased brother officer; and, filled with romantic visions of rural bliss and "love in a cottage," the pair, who were equally unskilled in the practical details of housekeeping, fancied they could live in affluence, and enjoy all the luxuries of life, on the half-pay which formed their sole income

They took up their abode near a pleasant town in the south of England, and for a time got on pretty well; but when at the end of the first year a sweet little boy made his appearance, and at the end of the second an equally sweet little girl, they found that nurse-maids, baby-linen, doctors and all the et ceteras appertaining to the introduction and support of these baby visitors, formed a serious item in their yearly expenditure.

For a while they struggled on without falling into debt; but at length their giddy feet slipped into that vortex which has engulfed so many, and their affairs began to assume a very gloomy aspect. About this time an adventurer named Smith, with whom Capt. Dutton became casually accquainted, and whose plausible manner completely imposed on the frank, unsuspecting soldier, proposed to him a plan for insuring, as he represented a large and rapid fortune. This was to be effected by embarking considerable capital in the manufacture of spirit-lamps, which Smith assured the captain would, when once known, supersede the use of candles and oil-lamps throughout the kingdom. To hear him descant on the marvellous virtues and money-making qualities of his lamp, one would be inclined to take him for the lineal descendant of Aladdin, and inheritor of that scampish individual's precious heir-loom. Our modern magician, however, candidly confessed that he still wanted the "slave of the lamp," or, in other words, ready money to set the invention agoing; and he at length succeeded in persuading the unlucky captain to sell out of the army, and invest the price of his commission in this luminous venture. If Capt. Dutton had refused to pay the money until he should be able to pronounce correctly the name of the invention, he would have saved his cash, the expense, probably, of semi-dislocation of his jaws; for the lamp rejoiced in an eight syllabled [illegible] of which each syllable belonged to another tongue,—the first being Greek, the fourth Syriac, and the last taken from the aboriginal language of New Zealand; the intervening sounds believed to be respectively Latin, German, Sanscrit, and Malay. Notwithstanding, however, this prestige of name, the lamp was a decided failure, its light was brilliant enough; but the odor it exhaled in burning was so overpowering, so suggestive of an evil origin, so everyway abominable, that those adventurous purchasers who tried it once seldom submitted their olfactory nerves to a second ordeal. The sale and manufacture of the lamp and its accompanying spirit were carried on by Mr. Smith alone in one of the chief commercial cities of England, he having kindly arranged to take all the trouble off his partner's hands, and only requiring him to furnish the necessary [illegible] for which, his accounts transmitted to Capt. Dutton were most flourishing, and he and his gentle wife [illegible] that they were about to realize a splendid fortune for their little ones; but at length they began to feel anxious for the arrival of [illegible] which had been promised, but which [illegible] and Mr. Smith's letters suddenly ceasing, his partner one morning set off to inspect the mill of operations.

Arrived at L[illegible], he repaired to the street where the manufactory was situated, and found it shut up! Mr. Smith had gone off to America, considerably in debt to those who had been foolish enough to trust him; and [illegible] lamp on the premises than [illegible] in trade of the unprocurable lamp would pay. As to the poor captain, he returned to his family a ruined man.

But [illegible] in the depths of adversity, [illegible] and both our hero and his wife [illegible] ready to work to support themselves and their children. Happily they [illegible] out. On selling out, [illegible] fully paid every farthing he owed in the world before intrusting the remainder of his capital to the unprincipled Smith; and how this [illegible] conduct was its own reward.

He wrote [illegible] and [illegible] seeking some [illegible] ment, carried a file [illegible] pts, in which [illegible] men [illegible] His [illegible] but [illegible] necessity [illegible] ed her [illegible] Notwithstanding all [illegible] extremity, they [illegible] a debt [illegible] from [illegible] years exquisitely all [illegible] and the children, debts of honor always [illegible] and often inconvenient, looked, as they were, the sons and daughters of a gentleman.

It was Mrs. Dutton's pride to preserve the genteel appearance of her husband's wardrobe; and often did she work till midnight at turning his coat and darning his linen, that he might appear as usual among his friends. She often urged him to visit his former acquaintances, who had power to befriend him, and which their interest in obtaining me permanent employment; but the soldier, who was brave as a lion when facing the enemy, shrank with the timidity of a girl from exposing himself to the humiliation of a refusal, and could not bear to confess his urgent need. He had too much delicacy to press his claims; he was too proud to be importunate; and so others succeeded where he failed.

It happened that the general under whom he had served, and who had lost sight of him since his retirement from the service, came to spend a few months at the watering place near which the Duttons resided, and hired for the season a handsome furnished house. Walking one morning on the sands, in a dissipated mood, our hero saw, with surprise, his former commander approaching; and, with a sudden feeling of false shame, he tried to avoid a recognition. But the quick eye of Gen. Vernon was not to be eluded; and, instantly [illegible] him with an outstretched hand, he claimed, "What, Dutton! is that you? It is an age since we met. Living in this neighborhood, eh?"

"Yes, general; I have been living here since I retired from the service."

"And you sold out, I think—to please the dress, I suppose, Dutton? Ah! these ladies have a great deal to answer for. Tell me, Dutton I shall call on her some morning, and read her a lecture for taking you from us."

Poor Dutton's look of confusion, as he pictured the general's visit surprising his wife in the performance of her menial labors rather surprised the veteran; but its true cause did not occur to him. He had a great regard for Dutton, considering him one of the best and bravest officers under his command, and was sincerely pleased at meeting him again, after a ten minutes colloquy, during the progress of which the ex-soldier, like a warhorse who pricks up his ears at the sound of the trumpet, became gay and animated, as old associations of the camp and field came back upon him, the general shook him heartily by the hand, and said, "You will dine with me to-morrow, Dutton, and meet a few of your old friends? Come, I'll take no excuse, you must not turn hermit on our hands."

The first Dutton was going to refuse, but on second thoughts accepted the invitation, not knowing, indeed, any good reason to offer for declining it. Having taken leave of the General, therefore, he proceeded towards home, and announced their recodite to his wife. The poor woman, immediately took out his reserved suit, and occupied herself in removing, as best she might, the cruel ravages of time, as well as in starching and ironing a ready snowy shirt to the highest degree of perfection

The next day, in due time, he arrived at Gen. Vernon's handsome temporary dwelling, and received a cordial welcome A dozen guests, civilians as well as soldiers, sat down to a splendid banquet. After dinner, the conversation happened to turn on the recent improvements in arts and manufactures; and comparisons were drawn between the relative merits for invention displayed by artists of different countries. Watchmaking happening to be mentioned as one of the arts which had during late years been wonderfully improved, the host desired his valet to fetch a most beautiful little watch, a perfect chef-d'œuvre of workmanship, which he had lately purchased in Paris, and which was less valuable for its richly jewelled case, than for the exquisite perfection of the merchanism it enshrined. The trinket passed from hand to hand, and was greatly admired by the guests; then the conversation turned on other topics, and many subjects were discussed until they adjourned to the drawing-room to take coffee

After sitting there awhile, the general suddenly recollected his watch, and ringing for his valet, desired him take it from the dining-room table, where it had been left, and restore it to its proper place In a few moments the servant returned, looking somewhat frightened, he could not find the watch Gen. Vernon, surprised, went himself to search, but was not more fortunate.

"Perhaps, sir, you or one of the company may have carried it by mistake into the drawing-room?"

"I think not, but we will try"

Another search in which all the guests joined, but without avail.

"What I fear," said the general, "is that some one by chance may tread upon and break it."

General Vernon was a widower, and this costly trinket was intended as a present to his only child, a daughter, who had lately married a wealthy baronet.

"We will none of us leave this room until it is found!" exclaimed one of the gentlemen with ominous emphasis.

"That decision," said a young man, who was engaged that night to a ball, "might quarter us on our host for an indefinite time. I propose a much more speedy and satisfactory expedient; let us all be searched."

This suggestion was received with laughter and acclamations; and the young man presenting himself as the first victim was searched by the valet, who for the nonce enacted the part of custom-house officer The General, who at first opposed this piece of practical pleasantry, ended by laughing at it; and each new inspection of pockets produced fresh bursts of mirth. Captain Dutton alone took no share in what was going on, his hand trembled, his brow darkened, and he stood as much apart as possible. At length his turn came; the other guests had all displayed the contents of their pockets, so with one accord, and amid renewed laughter, they surrounded him, exclaiming that he must be the guilty one, as he was the last. The Captain pale and agitated, muttered some excuse, unheard amid the uproar.

"Now for it, Johnson!" cried one to the valet.

"Johnson, we're watching you!" said another, "produce the culprit."

The servant advanced, but Dutton, crossing his arms on his breast, declared in an agitated voice, that, except by violence, no one should lay a hand on him. A very awkward silence ensued, which the General broke by saying:

"Captain Dutton is right; this child's play has lasted long enough. I claim exemption for him and for myself."

Dutton, trembling and unable to speak, thanked his kind host by a grateful look, and then took an early opportunity of withdrawing. General Vernon did not make the slightest remark on his departure, and the remaining guests, through politeness, imitated his reserve; but the mirth of the evening was gone; every face shed a shade, and the host, himself soon, grave and thoughtful.

Captain Dutton spent sometime in wandering restlessly on the sands before he returned home. It was late when he entered the cottage, and his wife could not repress an exclamation of affright when she saw his pale and troubled countenance.

"What has happened?" cried she,

"Nothing," replied her husband, throwing himself on a chair, and laying a small packet on the table. "You have cost me very dear," he said, addressing it. In vain did his wife try to soothe him, and obtain an explanation.

"Not now, Jane," he said; "to-morrow we shall see. To-morrow I will tell you all."

Early next morning he went to General Vernon's house. Although he walked resolutely, his mind was sadly troubled. How could he put it himself? How could he speak to the General without risking the reception of some look or word which he could never pardon? The very meeting with Johnson was to be dreaded.

His knocked, another servant opened the door and instantly gave him admission. "This man, at all events," he thought, "knows nothing of what has passed." Will the general receive him? Yes; he is ushered into his dressing-room. Without daring to raise his eyes, the poor man began to speak in a low, hurried voice.

"Gen. Vernon, you thought my conduct strange last night; and painful and humiliating as its explanation will be, I feel it due to you and to myself to make it,"—

His auditor tried to speak; but Dutton went on, without heeding the interruption. "My misery is at its height; that is my only excuse. My wife, and our four little ones are actually starving!"

"My friend!" cried the general with emotion. But Dutton proceeded—

"I cannot describe my feelings yesterday while I sat at your luxurious table. I thought of my poor Jane, depriving herself of a morsel of bread to give it to her baby; of my little pale, thin Annie whose delicate appetite rejects the coarse food which is all we can give her; and in an evil hour I transferred two pates from my plate to my pocket, thinking they would tempt my little darling to eat. I should have died of shame had these things been produced from my pocket, and your guest and servant made witnesses of my cruel poverty. Now, general, you know all; and, but for the fear of being suspected by you of a crime, my distress should never have been known!"

"A life of unblemished honor has placed you above the reach of suspicion; besides, look here!" and he showed the missing watch. "It is I," continued he, "who must ask pardon of you all. In a fit of absence, I had dropped it into my waistcoat pocket, where, in Johnson's presence, I discovered it while undressing."

"If I had only known!" murmured poor Dutton.

"Don't regret what has occurred," said the general, pressing his hand kindly. "It has been the means of acquainting me with what you should never have concealed from an old friend, who, please God, will find some means to serve you."

In a few days Capt. Dutton received another invitation to dine with the general. All the former guests were assembled; and their host, with ready tact, took occasion to apologize for his strange forgetfulness about the watch. Capt. Dutton found a paper within the folds of his napkin, it was his nomination to an honorable and lucrative post, which insured competence and comfort to himself and family.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

Weekly Oregonian.

FOR 1869.

Nineteenth Volume!

Only $3.00 a Year.

By common consent, the OREGONIAN ranks first among the papers published in the Northwest It is the oldest paper in the State, and its circulation and influence are greater than that of any other two papers combined As a journal of enterprise in gathering the latest intelligence, and in giving to each issue a larger amount and greater variety of reading matter it has no competitor It is thoroughly identified with this city and State and neighboring Territories, where the number of its readers and its influence are constantly increasing.

An unflinching advocate of sound Union principles, it at the same time pays special attention not only to MATTERS OF GENERAL INTEREST, but to everything of moment to the great

Agricultural, Manufacturing, AND MINING INTERESTS,

And to the development of the resources and settlement of the Northwest.

Its columns contain a carefully prepared digest of

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana

TELEGRAMS FROM THE EAST AND EUROPE

are published as full as in the California journals, and put before our readers from ONE TO THREE DAYS BEFORE ANY OTHER PAPER IN THE STATE.

Among its corps of writers are regular correspondents at New York and Washington City, men who, having lived in this State, are able to write on Eastern affairs, both politically and commercially from an Oregon standpoint.

Its Literary and General Selections are from the best sources.

EXTENDED AND RELIABLE

are furnished every week, giving the Financial, Dry Goods, Hardware, and General Market Reports of Portland, and the latest reports by Telegraph of the San Francisco and New York markets. These reports are acknowledged to be the most accurate published in the State.

In every department it will be, as it has been, the foremost in the State in the field of journalism. Being firmly established, it will go forward with confidence, making new plans for improvement and usefulness, and hopes to gain increased circulation and support.

TERMS:

One Year	$3 00.
Six Months	1 50.
Three Months	1 00.

The WEEKLY OREGONIAN has been a favorite paper for mailing to friends in the East. It will be mailed from the office at subscription rates.

Subscribers will find on each paper, with their names, the date on which their subscriptions expire, as entered on our books. In renewing, the name of subscriber and post office should be distinctly written.

All papers are discontinued at the end of the time for which they have been paid, the date of which is always printed with the name each week.

REMIT BY MAIL AT OUR RISK, in presence of Postmaster, or pay to the nearest authorized agent.

We ask our friends to aid us in extending the circulation of the OREGONIAN in every direction.

A FREE VELOCIPEDE EXCITEMENT.—Mr. Chapin, of E. Martin & Co., and Mr. Hawley, of Hawley, Dodd & Co., each received by the Oriflamme, a velocipede, manufactured at San Francisco, and yesterday morning the machines were got out for trial. Several of the boys very soon [illegible]—the frisk of running with somewhat awkwardly, of course, and the velocipedal exhibition soon broke out afresh all over the city. Everybody now talks velocipedal lingo, and the ordinary salutation, when acquaintance meet, is "How do you ride?" or, "Where's your [illegible]? Ap.ropos of this, we find in Figaro, of San [illegible], under the head of "amusements," the following:—"Concerts at the Mechanics' Pavilion [illegible] velocipede school has now become a place of resort scarcely less popular than the late fair in that immense building. It is really amusing to see venerable citizens trying to master the mysteries of equilibrium, and giving up in disgust to the stale proverb, 'you can't teach an old dog new tricks.' Persevere, ye bald heads, it is never too late to learn."

A correspondent of a California paper gives an amusing account of his first and last velocipedestrianistical effort. He says:—"Velocipedes—Did you or yours ever have the whooping cough bad; concluded it couldn't [illegible] years of fever and ague, sandwiched between small pox and being out of debt, had [illegible] born upon me, it is true; but it was left for [illegible] to finish me. I was in San Francisco; had [illegible] A. Badlam. Badlam had the velocipedes. [illegible] him. We went to the [illegible] Beach Railway. There they were, young men and [illegible], fat and lean; Jew and Gentile; long hairs and [illegible] of a couple of small buggy wheels, [illegible]. And for the sake of those who never saw [illegible] it was [illegible] I then and [illegible] these things [illegible] after the other. I took precisely like the [illegible] of a buggy. Well, I looked on a while, and having [illegible] with why [illegible] in my day, [illegible] never having had any faith in horse flesh, save boiling that they'll run off whenever they get a chance, [illegible] was glad at heart and [illegible] to try one. So I [illegible] a two-wheeled carriage [illegible] the top grade of the Pavilion floor, and started down. The first I knew I was into and busted open, [illegible] to think it all right, [illegible] saw something of a road in my own domicile, and knew I would have to buy a pair for Twelfth Roma. He [illegible] a retail [illegible]. Getting up and [illegible] back to their [illegible] of the larger [illegible] that for food, he [illegible] [illegible]. He does business on [illegible] Mountain. I was just getting under splendid headway, [illegible] came the forward inch-pin. What happened [illegible] I cannot tell. A faint memory of an endless [illegible] of wheels traversing my spinal column, yet clings [illegible]. Well, I am here; and I'm opposed to wagers, and [illegible] wise; but I've got a partner [illegible] cus[illegible], who wishes to bet that the Mechanics' Pavilion is the owner, seized and poss. —l, of the hardest [illegible] ever hauled from wood. I've had as much velocipede as I [illegible] like 'em. Last Sabbath one of the [illegible] cussed I sighed and tried to kill a lot of [illegible]. On my way to church, I turned back, got [illegible] and [illegible] behind Gwinn's wood pile [illegible] two-wheeled imp gobbled up a man and [illegible] off to the Arabs. Sam, they are dangerous brutes; don't you ever let one get under you."

DIVORCE.—The following circular concerning [illegible] issued by Mr. Wm. Wadhams of R. G. [illegible] grocer, 32 Front street, Portland, is a [illegible] of what the law requires, and we therefore [illegible] here, though the law has been frequently [illegible]:

"I find many inquiries about the law in regard [illegible] and tobacco, and it being impracticable [illegible] the law for each of my [illegible]. This [illegible] and neither I or commending the substance of each act.

The law relative to "Wines, &c.," provides [illegible] any one, bottle, or other single package containing [illegible], and of pickles, prepared mustard, [illegible], jams or jellies, when such can or bottle [illegible] does not exceed two pounds in [illegible] with a one cent proprietary [illegible] of an original pound or fractional part [illegible] one cent stamp is required. Shellfish [illegible] cheese and [illegible] require no stamps. [illegible] and [illegible] vegetables and fruits are [illegible] to the import duties; but [illegible] are sold in the original or [illegible] the bottles or [illegible] wherein [illegible] duty is incurred, and [illegible] Where the packages are [illegible] that the tax on all [illegible] expressed [illegible] and fine-cut [illegible] the tax on [illegible] making denomination [illegible] and sixteen [illegible] and are [illegible] requires [illegible] paper or [illegible] gum, requires [illegible] The law is now in force on manufactured tobacco [illegible] Pig tobacco can be sold with a stamp until July 1st, 1869.

[illegible] are required to be [illegible] stamps [illegible] receipted bills, notes, &c., with the [illegible] stamps will pass if not bottled [illegible], French [illegible], hair oils, &c., with the proper proprietary stamps, and all fine-cut [illegible] and [illegible] tobacco and snuff with the proper [illegible], and thereby avoid the penalty provided for a violation of the law."

ASSESSMENTS.—It will be [illegible] heard that not long since the old Gym [illegible] building on Second [illegible] was found to be on fire; but, that at the time it was supposed to have been the accidental work of some small boys. Last Tuesday night, however, a fire was [illegible] large car shop adjoining the old Gym [illegible] room which could not have been the result of [illegible] must have been the act [illegible] of an incendiary. Some person had evidently got into the room where the carriages are now kept and had reached through a hole in the wall and set fire to a pile of shavings in the [illegible] shop. Some of the workmen in the Portland [illegible] and the blaze had put it out, without [illegible] the [illegible]. When discovered the fire [illegible] under good headway up the wall,

We copy the following from the Union [illegible] obsequies of Rev. Father Leonard. The M. E. Church was [illegible] capacity, and the [illegible] to the [illegible] to have been the largest ever seen in [illegible] with united as if one [illegible] upon brother-hood to pay the last mark of respect and honor to the memory of this veteran in the ministry of the gospel, and [illegible] to the wilds of an unsettled wilderness.....

[illegible] of Dr. McAfee was commenced yesterday morning. The testimony was taken at great length, and as the case will likely be tried at the Circuit Court next week, we have not thought it proper to give a full report of the evidence, at this time. The first witness [illegible] was the Doctor's son, a lad of 15 years, who testified [illegible] treatment of his mother before her death, [illegible] of the [illegible], of a dose of castor oil administered the [illegible] last death, and of the placing of a vessel of [illegible] invalid's room for the purpose, as the witness [illegible] of causing death. The testimony of several went to show the guilt of the accused. [illegible] Dr. Payton, gave the weight of the doubts [illegible] mind, to the prisoner. The witness was [illegible] examination held subsequent to the [illegible] McAfee. No report of the examining physicians [illegible]. He stated that the board found soft[illegible] the brain, and some of the physicians expressed [illegible] satisfied." He stated that this softening [illegible] might have caused death or it might not. The [illegible] was examined at the same time, but the [illegible] did not state whether chemically or not. The [illegible] was held to answer at this term of the Circuit [illegible].

COURT—DEADY, JUDGE.—Proceedings of Thursday, 4th:

Mary W. Heath vs. Wilson and Gilman; settled and [illegible].

First M. E. Church vs. M. A. Eldridge, decree of dismissal of [illegible].

Smith and wife vs. Anna Kubletz; decree appointing J. L. Atkinson, David Monnastes and J. Stitzel referees, [illegible] to sell lot 8 in block 11.

State of Oregon vs. D. F. Fox; all day consumed in hearing testimony for the prosecution.

THE CAUSE OF THE FALL OF GOLD.—The S. F. Bulletin attributes the fall in the premiums on gold and correspondingly the rise in the value of greenbacks, in great part to the recent decisions of the Supreme Court, the passage of a Special Contract Act, and the prospect of a harmonious administration.

LAUNCH.—The hull of a small steamer was launched [illegible] day at the upper end of town. We do not know who is the owner, but we are informed that when finished, the [illegible] is to run upon the small tributaries of the Columbia and in connection with some of the fisheries.

THE MCKINLEY TROUPE, which gave a series of performances here last year, is at White Pine.

ENTERPRISE TRIUMPHANT.—THE OREGON DISPENSARY is [illegible] a reputation second to no house on the coast as a first class and Cheap Drug Store.

Our success has been so flattering that we have sent for another Apothecary. We have also secured the valuable services of Dr. J. A. CHAPMAN as Consulting Surgeon and Physician, thus giving evidence of our desire to afford the best of everything to our patrons for their liberal patronage. LORVEA & KALLENBERG.

78 First street.

OPPOSITION LINE OF STEAMERS.—A private letter from San Francisco says that a strong and well regulated Steamship company was formed in that city for the purpose of running a line of steamers regularly between San Francisco and Portland. The steamers are known to be suitable for the Oregon trade, and are noted for good speed and splendid passenger accommodation. The people of Oregon will have an opportunity of showing whether they are willing to patronize good and staunch steamers, at a reasonable price for freight and passage, as it will depend on the patronage these steamers will receive whether they will remain in our waters or not.

While you think of opposition, remember that KOHN & FISHEL, No. 91 Front street, have the finest stock of Clothing and Dry Goods, and sell at very low prices.

S. T.—1860—X.—The unprecedented and extraordinary demand for PLANTATION BITTERS is evidently owing to their being prepared with pure St. Croix Rum, Calisaya Bark, etc. Our Druggists all complain that it is almost impossible to keep a supply, and that their orders, owing to the great demand and limited supply, are but tardily executed. Be sure and get the genuine.

DANCING ACADEMY.—Prof. Cardinell's classes are held every week-day evening, and on Saturday afternoon for children. Hall in Pogleton's Building, First street.

NIGHT SCHOOL.—Mr. Fitzgerald has opened a Night School in the schoolhouse (up stairs) near the Catholic Church. For Terms—See the Teacher.

G. VENARD,

CHARTRES COFFEE!

Manufactory Established in June, 1851.

STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 5, 1869.

Public Honesty.

The way to do business on a small capital now being illustrated by our neighbor of the Herald who, for the last three days has given his editorials on a single idea, and that an historically false one, obtained from an editorial in the New York World. That idea starts from the assumption that the principle upon which the payment of the Revolutionary debt was provided for by the First Congress was the so-called "equitable" one of allowing public creditors only so much as they had paid for their bonds; that is, as the bonds were depreciated when the holders bought them, they, the holders, were not to receive the full amount of money the bonds called for, but only so much as they had given the Government for them. It is urged that this principle be applied to the payment of the present public debt. Speaking of the debt, the Herald says: "Some of these bonds, bought for in greenbacks at forty or fifty cents on the dollar of the contract made payable in gold. That is, the Government is pledged to steal and rob from the people to pay these creditors what they never received." The editor is then quoted from the World that it was the funding scheme which the First Congress adopted, the terms of which paid the old claims at two-thirds of their nominal value and relinquished all title to the balance. If the present creditors of the Government are not equally wise they perhaps may go further and fare worse."

It is not true that this was the principle on which the Revolutionary debt was settled. Every dollar of that debt was paid in accordance with the contract. Subscribers to the loan by which the debt was funded in 1790-91 were paid in new stock at par value; the whole was to bear interest at six per cent.; but upon one-third of the amount of the new loan, known as deferred stock, the interest was not to commence till 1800. It was left to the option of the creditors whether they would subscribe or not to this new loan. If they did not subscribe they would still receive and the Government would be bound for the whole principal; but the interest was to suspend for the interest of the whole, non-subscribing creditors would be paid for their interest on the principal of the debt as before. Some of the debt was funded the new act, the interest (six per cent.) that it carried. The debt amounted to $75,000,000. From a large part of this debt the Government had received but a fraction of its nominal value; yet it was paid and finally paid off to the last dollar. If not true, then, that this principle which the First Congress adopted, and by which the debt was funded, and this Republic established, is entirely and utterly more reliable than the New York World.

The Pacific Railroads.

The failure of the Pacific mails apprised us some days ago that communication overland was blocked somewhere; and the telegraphic dispatches now inform us that heavy snows have closed the Union Pacific railroad. Of course travel has been stopped, and the trains are again to come by sea. A portion of the route of the Union Pacific has an altitude nearly 8,000 feet, and without doubt will be much subject to heavy falls of snow, which will be expected to close the road for a portion of almost every winter. This fact is one which the supporters of the Northern Pacific road will hardly fail to take advantage of. Heretofore they have been urging this as a consideration in favor of the Northern road, but it was an argument which did not carry much weight. Now, however, the great fall of snow, blocking up the Central route, presents the argument in a much more practical and forcible way than the advocates of the Northern route have ever been able to do. It is well known that along the route which the Northern road will traverse, the fall of snow is much lighter than along the route of the Union Pacific. This is principally attributable to the decreasing altitude of the mountains toward the north. It is a well established fact that the Northern road will not have over any altitude greater than 4,500 feet. It will therefore be a comparatively easy matter to keep it clear of snow; indeed it is certain that the snow never falls to such a depth in any point on the route as would block the road trains. This argument in favor of the Northern road will now have new power. Railway communication must be had between the ocean by a route which is never blocked with snow. Travel and commerce cannot afford to be "snowed up" for a month, or even a week, in each year.

Small Notes.

Col. Chapman has safely reached Salem. This fact is made apparent by the style of the "official paper's" editorials. Chapman is equally great on State finances and Chinese question. The probabilities are that he will find permanent employment as editor of the "State organ."

The Commercial eagerly says: "The history of the late war, with its effect for weal or woe to the nation, is far from its completion, and in it Grant is to make a figure." Now we regard this as an astonishing prophecy about Grant. We suppose this sage wouldn't be at all surprised if Grant rises to distinction yet.

A correspondent in Columbia county says a good many people there are anxious to know "whether a person who takes out a marriage license in one county is entitled to use it in another." Our laws provide that the license must be taken out in the county where the woman resides. When this is done it is clearly lawful and proper for the parties to go to any place they please within the State to be married. The law never intended to interfere with this freedom.

The poor rag at the State Capitol on Wednesday says that the Democratic members of the Legislature are going to meet, get a quorum, proceed with business, carry out their partisan legislation, and all that sort of thing; and wants to know what can be done to stop them. On Thursday it says the only way to get any legislation is for the Governor to issue writs of election and convene the Legislature. So one day has completely changed the poor rag's view of things. The poor rag should never attempt an intellectual feat greater than its oft-repeated boast that it is the "official paper of the State."

The Herald continues to sneer at Poor Beriah, its whilom editor, in a most uncharitable manner. With Beriah in its mind's eye it talks about "notorious spongers and bummers;" and at another time alludes to the Press as "an obscene and professedly Democratic paper, of less circulation and far less editorial ability than the McMinnville Courier." All this because Beriah will not come out boldly for the repudiation of the public debt. It is doubtless true that Beriah's ability is small, but he knows enough to be aware that an avowal of repudiation principles would sink his party out of sight forevermore. In this matter he has far more sagacity than his brethren who are condemning him.

How Democrats Carry Elections—Importance of Registration.

The Hon. Wm. Bunn, Republican, is now contesting before the Pennsylvania Legislature the seat of the Hon. Daniel Wiltham, Democrat, returned as elected from the Eleventh Legislative District, in Philadelphia. The Harrisburg papers publish some of the testimony in the case, showing a scheme of fraud and villany which cannot fail to startle the public, at the same time that it explains the manner in which the Democracy manage to carry elections where there are no sufficient frauds around the ballot box. We give a sample of the testimony:

Abner H. Reeves, sworn: I am clerk in the office of the Prothonotary, of the Court of Common Pleas; I have official returns of the Eleventh Legislative District of Philadelphia [the return of the return judges was then submitted]; this is the return filed in our office; it shows that Daniel Wiltham received 3,097 votes, and Wm. Bann 3,044 votes.

Murray Evans, sworn: I reside in Christian street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, Philadelphia; on the 13th of October I had no particular items; I know of persons voting in the Eleventh Legislative District who were not residents therein; I know of them having voted in the Sixteenth ward; I, Mr. Lamb, Mr. Elliott, Mr. Rowan, Mr. Rehling, the New Yorkers and two Baltimoreans went that way up there; eight of us started from Third and Christian, and met two others at Third and Queen's. Ayr took the Third street car and went to Poplar; got out and went down Poplar to Front; went to Bull's Hotel, Front above Poplar, and got from a man there a name, residence, and occupation, and voted; got the ticket from this man; from there we went to Front and Otter streets; got the name and residence and voted there; then we went to New Market and Laurel; from there to Sasnd and Germantown road; from there to Second and Beaver streets; from there to Fourth and George; from there to Fifth, below George; from there to Fifth and Poplar; from there to Franklin and Girard avenue; from there to Tenth and Girard avenue; we got a $5 bill there from the man who gave us the ticket, and five of us went down to the Girard Avenue Market and got our dinners; the other five went down town; the whole ten voted in the whole of the places I have mentioned; the five I was with went to Front above Poplar, and went over the same track that the ten had went before; I was sent to Front above Poplar; don't know the man's name that sent me; I had a mark to know the man from whom I was to get the ticket; he had a piece of store string tied to his button hole; each one of us received a slip of paper with name, residence and occupation on; we did not go in a body from one poll to another; cannot recollect the names we voted in; as soon as we voted we gave the slips of paper to the man who gave them to us; do not know the names of the parties who furnished us tickets; we voted the Democratic ticket; did not examine any of them; the men we took them from had the Democratic badge on.

Cross examined: I was not challenged nor put on my oath; nor any of the others that I saw; did not see all the votes taken in; I voted twenty times myself that day; we started at eight o'clock in the morning and stopped at half-past five in the evening.

State Items.

The Sentinel censphins with much severity of Mr. Dufur's article on Jackson county.

B. F. Dowell writes from Washington City that there is no prospect of any further recognition and payment of Oregon war claims.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: We are rejoiced to say that small pox has entirely disappeared from this place. Every house in which cases have occurred, have been disinfected and the quarantine flags removed. We hope it may stay away, but if it should appear again our people will be apt to recognize it.

In Jackson county the ground is getting too dry to plow. A number of wells in the valley are dry, and few furnish water at a less depth than twenty feet. There is an almost certain prospect of short crops. So dry a season was never before known.

The North German Army.—The North German military organization is now complete, according to the Prussian Military Gazette. A million can, at any moment, be placed under arms by a single telegram from Berlin.

The Prussian troops consist of 325 battalions of infantry, 268 squadrons of cavalry, 11 regiments of artillery, with 1,136 guns, and 12 battalions of engineers, making 410,000 soldiers in all. To these should be added the federal contingents, as follows: Saxony, 22 battalions, 24 squadrons, 96 batteries and 6 guns; Brunswick, 3 battalions, 4 squadrons and 6 guns; Mecklenburg Strelitz, 1 battalion; Hesse Darmstadt, 10 battalions, 8 squadrons, 24 guns and 1 battalion of engineers—total, 53,000.

But this force of 463,000 men only represents the standing army of North Germany. In case of emergency Prussia can also command the services of the troops of Baden, Wurtemburg and Bavaria, and immediately order a levy of her reserve, an army of 343,000 men, while still another force of 200,000 men is at her disposal for the occupation of towns and garrisons. The above figures do not include officers, military laborers, nor special corps of any kinds.

The Nation makes rather a good point, when it says that "the reason why the whisky ring is so powerful among us is, that they have applied brains to the business of stealing and swindling, and good people have opposed to them nothing but rhetoric."

The Wisconsin Assembly has passed a resolution "to promote good morals by prohibiting the chewing of tobacco in the Assembly Chamber."

DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

DATES TO MARCH 4.

President Grant's Inaugural Address.

CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES: Your suffrages having elevated me to the office of President of the United States, I have, in conformity with the Constitution of our country, taken the oath of office prescribed therein. I have taken this oath without mental reservation, and with the determination to do the best of my ability all that it requires of me. The responsibilities of the position I feel, but accept them without fear. The office has come to me unsought. I commence its duties untrammelled. I bring to it a conscientious desire and determination to fill it to the best of my ability and to the satisfaction of the people. On all leading questions agitating the public mind, I will express my views to Congress and urge them according to my judgment, and when I think it advisable I will always exercise the constitutional privilege of interposing a veto to defeat measures which I oppose, but all laws will be faithfully executed whether they meet my approval or not. I shall on all subjects have a policy to recommend, but none to enforce against the will of the people. The laws are to govern all alike, those opposed to them as well as those who favor them. I know no method to secure the repeal of bad or obnoxious laws so effective as their stringent execution.

The country having just emerged from a great rebellion, many questions will come before it for settlement in the next four years which the preceding administrations have never had to deal with. In meeting them, it is desirable that they should be approached calmly, without prejudice to State or sectional pride, remembering that the greatest good to the greatest number is the object to be attained. This requires the security of person, property, and for religious and political opinions in every part of our common country, without regard to locality or prejudice. Laws to secure these will receive my best efforts for their enforcement.

A great debt has been contracted in securing for us and our posterity the Union. The payment of this, principal and interest, as well as the return to a specie basis as soon as it can be accomplished without material detriment to the debtor class or the country at large, must be provided for. To protect the national honor every dollar of the Government indebtedness should be paid in gold, unless otherwise expressed or stipulated in the contracts. Let it be understood that no repudiator of a farthing of our public debt will be trusted in a public place, and it will go far towards strengthening a credit which ought to be the best in the world, and will ultimately enable us to replace the debt with bonds bearing less interest than we now pay. To this should be added a faithful collection of the Revenue; a strict accountability to the Treasury for every dollar collected, and the greatest practicable retrenchment in expenditure in every department of the Government. When we compare the paying capacity of the country now, with the States still in poverty from the effects of the war, but soon to emerge, I trust, into greater prosperity than ever before, with its paying capacity twenty-five years ago, and to calculate what it probably will be twenty five years hence, who can doubt the feasibility of paying every dollar then with more ease than we now pay for useless luxuries? Why it looks as though Providence has bestowed upon us a strong box of the precious metals locked up in the sterile mountains of the far West, which we are now forging the key to unlock to meet the very exigency that is now upon us. Ultimately it may be necessary that the General Government should give its aid to secure this access, but that should only be when a dollar of obligation to pay secures precisely the same as a dollar to us now, and not before. While the question of specie payment is in abeyance, the prudent business man is careful about contracting debts payable in the distant future. The nation should follow the same rule. Prostrate commerce is to be rebuilt and all industries encouraged. The young men of the country who, from their age, must be its rulers twenty-five years hence, have a particular interest in maintaining the national honor. A moment's reflection as to what will be our commanding influence among the nations of the earth in their day, if they are only true to themselves, should inspire them with national pride. All divisions—geographical, political and religious—concur in this common sentiment.

How the public debt is to be paid, or specie payment resumed, is not so important as that a plan should be adopted and acquiesced in. A united determination to do it is worth more than divided counsels upon the method of doing. Legislation upon this subject may not be necessary now or even advisable, but it will be when the civil law is more fully restored in all parts of the country and trade resumes its wonted channel. It will be my endeavor to execute all laws in good faith, collect all revenues assessed, and to have them properly accounted for and economically disbursed. It will be for me, to the best of my ability, to appoint to office those only who will carry out this design.

In regard to foreign policy, I would deal with nations as equitably as the law requires individuals to deal with each other, and I would protect every law-abiding citizen whether of native or of foreign birth, wherever his rights are jeopardized or the flag of our country floats. I would respect the rights of all nations, demanding equal respect for our own. If others depart from this rule in their dealings with us, we may be compelled to follow their precedents.

The proper treatment of the original occupants of this land—the Indians—are deserving of care and equal study. I will favor any course towards them which tends to their civilization, christianity and ultimate citizenship.

The question of suffrage is one which is likely to agitate the public so long as a portion of the citizens of the nation are excluded from its privilege in any State. It seems to me very desirable that this question should be settled now. I entertain the hope, and express the desire, it may be by the ratification of the fifteenth article of the amendment to the Constitution.

In conclusion, I ask patience and forbearance of one towards another throughout the land, and a determined effort on the part of every citizen to do his share towards cementing a happy union; and I ask the prayers of the nation to Almighty God in behalf of this consummation.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—In the House the galleries were crowded. A message from the Senate was read, informing the House of the passage of the postoffice and legislative appropriation bill. The House non-concurred in the Senate amendments and asked for a conference committee.

Speaker Colfax delivered his farewell address. Wilson, of Iowa, took the chair.

Resolutions were unanimously passed that the retirement of Colfax from the Speaker's chair after a long and faithful discharge of its duties is an event in our current history which causes general regret, but that the country is to have the benefit of his matured talents and experience in the higher sphere of duty to which he has been called by a majority of his countrymen. On this parting from its distinguished Speaker, the House records with becoming sensibility its high appreciation of his skill and parliamentary law, promptness in administering and facilitating business, his urbane manner and the dignity and impartiality with which he presided over the deliberations of the House. He will carry with him to his field of duty and throughout his life the kindest regards of every member of the House.

Pomeroy was unanimously elected Speaker. He took the oath and returned thanks.

The bill amendatory of the whisky tax bill extending the time for drawing whisky from warehouses till the 20th of April, 1870, passed.

Schenck, of the Ways and Means Committee, reported a resolution remitting the duty on cable imported for the Western Union Telegraph for the abandoned Russian American line.

The House passed a bill repealing the law giving the Supreme Court jurisdiction in revenue cases where the sum it involves is less than $2,000, and leaving the final decision in such cases to the Circuit Court.

The Conference Committee reported on Schenck's bill to strengthen the public credit. They agreed, and the bill goes to the President for his signature. The House took a recess.

In the House, during the evening session, on motion of Dawes, the rules were suspended and the resolution to pay Menard and Hunt, claiming seats from Louisiana, $2 500 each, was passed.

The Senate amendment to the army appropriation bill was non concurred in and a conference committee asked.

Farnsworth, of the Conference Committee on the removal of political disabilities made a report which explained particularly the case of Judge Parker. Schenck said he was the Judge who hung John Brown. The vote was taken and the report non concurred in, and another conference asked.

Ela, from the Committee on Printing, reported that they were unable to agree upon the contract with the publishers of the Globe for reporting and publishing the debates. He reported a resolution that the public printers perform this service till definite action is had. Resolutions were finally agreed to giving the reporting and publishing to the public printer. Ingersoll moved to reconsider. Pending the vote, Butler, of the Indian Committee reported that the committee had agreed not to consider the subject any further on account of the want of time. They had agreed to report resolutions for a joint select conference committee for the consideration of the whole subject of the Indians. It was ruled on authority that such a report was not privileged.

The House is still in session and likely to remain so all night.

The Senate at 2 P. M. passed the deficiency bill and adjourned to meet to day at noon.

Sherman reported Schenck's bill to strengthen the public credit, substantially unchanged. It was discussed and agreed to—31 to 14.

The Army appropriation bill came up.

Sumner's amendment for the payment to Massachusetts of her interest claim was discussed and agreed to—116 to 35. Then the bill passed.

The joint resolution not to pay Corcoran for the use of his property during the war, till he takes the test oath, was passed.

On motion of Sumner, the Senate non-concurred in the House amendment to the joint resolution of sympathy for Spain.

On motion of Conkling, the Senate went into executive session.

In the Senate, during the evening session, the miscellaneous appropriation bill was considered.

The amendment giving the Sisters of Mercy at Charleston, $20,000 in recognition of their services to the Union soldiers, was discussed. Drake and Howard opposed it. Sherman and Sawyer favored it. The amendment was rejected.

Conkling reported that the Conference Committee on the Postoffice appropriation bill had agreed.

Davis offered a resolution that the thanks of the Senate are due and are hereby tendered to Wade for the ability, impartiality and justness with which he had discharged the duties of presiding officer during the time he had occupied the chair. Adopted. The amendment to the miscellaneous appropriation bill, giving $5,000 toward the improvement of the mouth of the Mississippi river, was agreed to. Wilson, from Conference Committee on the army appropriation bill, reported that they had concurred in the bill as amended. It provides for the consolidation of the infantry regiments to twenty five, and until that is done that no new enlistments or promotions shall be made or commissions given, and no appointments of Brigadiers shall be made till the number is reduced to less than eight; that brevet rank shall not entitle an officer to precedence in command, except by special assignment from the President, which shall not entitle any officer to additional pay or allowance.

At 12 30 P. M. the Senate went into executive session.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—In the Senate Colfax said: In entering this chamber for the performance of the duties to which I have been called by the people of the United States, I realize fully the delicacy and responsibility of the position of presiding over a body whose members, in so large a degree, are seniors. Not being chosen by the body itself, I shall certainly need assistance, support and generous forbearance and confidence, but pledging all faithful and unflinching impartiality in the administration of your rules, earnestly desiring co-operation with you in the deliberations of the Senate, worthy not only to the history of renown, but also of the States whose commissions you hold. I am ready to take the oath freely. The oath was then administered by Chief Justice Chase.

Washington News.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The Herald says that in conversation with General Reynolds yesterday, Grant was understood to say that reconstruction can take care of itself, and that Cuban independence and the Alabama claims will require his attention first.

The committee of the New York subscribers to the Sherman testimonial, have completed the purchase of Grant's house. They called on Sherman, and A. T. Stewart made the presentation in a happy speech. Sherman was much affected, and responded, saying that he should hold the magnificent gift for the special benefit of his family and the education of his children.

The President's private reception room was thrown open at noon. An immense throng was present.

The following assignments have been made for the Quartermaster's Department: Brig. Gen. Tompkins Chief of the Department of Alaska; Brevet Brig. Gen. Saxton Chief of the Department of Columbia; Brevet Maj. Sawtelle Chief of the Department of California.

West Virginia has ratified the constitutional amendment.

It is estimated that 15,000 people arrived today to attend the inauguration.

The President last night signed the pardons of Arnold and Spangler.

The Senate confirmed W. C. Howell as attorney for Arizona. Holline will resign his position of Commissioner of Internal Revenue immediately, and it is expected the nomination of Delano will be sent to the Senate on Monday. Deputy Harlan will retire from the Revenue Bureau shortly.

The different heads of departments who resigned took their leave of their subordinates this afternoon. The executive mansion was thronged the entire day. At least five thousand people called, and many took a formal leave of the President. Among the number were navy officers. The entire diplomatic corps, with their ladies and families, took leave of the Secretary of State and of the President.

The Czar of Russia.

NEW YORK, March 3.—A St. Petersburg letter says the Czar's health is doubtful and shows but little improvement since last summer. He is steadily failing.

From Cuba.

HAVANA, March 3.—Reports of a rising in Consolacion are confirmed, and troops have been sent to quell other risings at Colez, near Mantanzes. A steamer recently arrived at Santiago with a cargo of coolies. The negroes prevented her from landing.

The troops are barricading and fortifying Santa Esperata.

The Prensia says Dulce has ordered a hundred and fifty volunteers to take the prisoners captured to their destination in Spain.

The Spanish man of war, Cadiz, has arrived from Spain with a thousand fresh troops. An order has been issued for the release of Uttely, clerk of the American Consul General, who has been nearly a month in prison.

The American brig I. D. Lincoln, detained here for taking a cargo at Sierra Morna after that port was closed by Dulce's proclamation, has obtained a clearance through the intercession of the American Consul.

An insurgent general was captured and taken to Sugua Dagrande where he was sentenced to be shot.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4, 6:30 P. M.—Inauguration day was ushered in by the ringing of bells and firing of bombs and crackers last night. Bunting is liberally displayed throughout the city to-day and the citizens generally are jubilant.

The Board of Underwriters have presented Capt. Cummings, of the ship Young America, with $1,000 as a testimonial for bringing his disabled vessel through to port of destination without calling in at a way port for repairs.

The steamer China sails for Yokohama to-morrow noon.

The Panama steamer Golden City arrived this morning, also the U. S. steamer Mohongo from Mazatlan.

Angelo Asegopardi, who was stabbed on Tuesday night by his partner, died to day.

Some maliciously disposed Chinaman attempted to burn the block of buildings on Jackson street, between Kearney and Dupont. Fortunately the fire was discovered and extinguished without a general alarm. It is thought that the plot had its origin among the enemies of Lin Wing, who was shot a few days ago.

WALTHAM WATCHES.

The extensive use of these watches for the last fifteen years by Railway Conductors, Engineers and Expressmen, the most exacting of watch wearers, has thoroughly demonstrated the strength, steadiness, durability and accuracy of the Waltham Watch. To satisfy that class in all these respects, is to decide the question as to the real value of these timekeepers.

The superior organization and great extent of the Company's Works at Waltham, enable them to produce watches, COMBINING THE BEST AND LATEST IMPROVEMENTS, and at a price which renders competition futile, and those who buy any other watch, merely pay from 25 to 50 per cent. more for their watches than is necessary.

For sale by all dealers.
